

EM-Assist Announces Southern California Office Expansion

TEMECULA, CA – August 25, 2008 – EM-Assist, Inc., a leading provider of environmental services and training solutions to government clients, announced today that it has opened a new office in Southern California. The company has more than doubled the number of its Southern California staff in the last several months to provide additional local support to its Department of Defense clients in the region. Located in Temecula, CA, EM-Assist's new larger office is located near numerous military installations, including Marine Corps Base Camp Pendleton, Marine Corps Air Station Miramar, Marine Corps Logistics Base Barstow, and the Marine Corps Air Ground Combat Center at Twentynine Palms.

EM-Assist Chief Executive Officer Jeremy Burr said, "We are committed to having a long-term, local presence in Southern California to provide responsive support to all our clients in the region. We've worked with the Marine Corps since 2001, and last year we opened a smaller regional office near Camp Pendleton. As our involvement with Marine Corps Installations West has expanded, we've built up our Southern California team accordingly; we're excited to open this new larger office, which allows us to continue building our team to provide even better local support."

In addition to hiring new employees in Southern California, EM-Assist is leveraging existing experienced team members in a way that benefits both the company's clients and new employees. Brent Stout, EM-Assist's Vice President of Training Solutions, explained, "As EM-Assist becomes more geographically dispersed and offers expanded services, it becomes increasingly important to cultivate a 'one firm' culture that maintains EM-Assist's proven approach to doing business. We are proud to have employees who exemplify EM-Assist's values and who thrive on the challenge of growing a new office and training new hires."

EM-Assist recently relocated experienced, long-tenured employees from the company's Salt Lake City, Utah and Denver, Colorado offices to Southern California. Senior Instructional Designer Lisa Heiner, who relocated from the company's Salt Lake City office to the new Temecula office, commented, "EM-Assist was very supportive when I expressed interest in moving to the region. I'm excited about joining our team in the Temecula office, and I look forward to being able to share with them some of the best practices we've refined in our other offices."
